Working towards an inclusive
Australia where cultural diversity and disability rights are valued as essential aspects of an equitable society.

What NEDA is:

The national peak organisation representing the rights and interests of people from a non-English speaking background (NESB) with disability, their families and carers throughout Australia.

A community based, non-government organisation funded by the Commonwealth Department of Families, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs. NEDA has a small secretariat and is governed by a Council of state and territory representatives. The majority of Council members are people from NESB with disability, their families and carers.

NEDA membership is open to organisations and individuals wishing to support our work.

What NEDA believes:

- People from NESB with disability, their families and carers are individuals who have the right to be respected for their human worth and dignity, and to be free from all forms of discrimination.
- People from NESB with disability, their families and carers are experts in knowing how they want to receive services and supports.
- All our activities must take into account the views and experiences of people from NESB with disability, their families and carers.
- The interests of all people in society are best served by establishing equal rights and opportunities for people from NESB with disability, their families and carers.
- We are accountable to people from NESB with disability, their families and carers and to the agencies who provide our funds.
- We are open, honest and transparent in our relationships.

What NEDA does:

NEDA advocates at the federal level for the rights and interests of people from NESB with disability, their families and carers so that they can participate fully in all aspects of social, economic, political and cultural life.

NEDA provides policy advice to the federal government and other agencies to secure equitable outcomes for people from NESB with disability, their families and carers. NEDA manages projects relating to the NESB and disability communities.

NEDA works closely with its state and territory member organisations to ensure that its policy advice reflects the lived experiences of people from NESB with disability, their families and carers. In states and territories where no NESB - disability advocacy agency exists, NEDA undertakes development work to try to establish a structure that can support and represent people from NESB with disability, their families and carers.
